It is an honor to serve on the AWC Board since 2021, and as your current Vice-President. For 15-years, I have served my city, those from King County and across the state through service on the AWC board and committees, the Sound Cities Association board and numerous regional, statewide and national committees.

This has reinforced my belief that every city and town is unique and that the needs and desires of each are important to the success of us all.

Our cities and towns face similar challenges, yet each one has unique circumstances. One size fits all solutions are often not the answer. For all of us to be successful, we must listen, learn and meet each other where we are, and support each other in our quests to improve our communities for all.

AWC is the bridge between all of our cities and towns, providing a range of services and legislative work that seeks to meet the needs of all communities in Washington State.

From the AWC Benefit Trust, to RMSA, the Worker's Compensation Retro Program, the Drug and Alcohol Consortium and GIS Consortium to the legislative priorities committee, trainings, webinars and more, the AWC has been helping cities and towns be the best we can be for 91 years and counting.

From the smallest, most rural cities and towns to the largest urban cities we all want what's best for our communities and the state of Washington. We serve so that we can make a difference for our residents.

As President of AWC I look forward representing each one of our jurisdictions and serving you.
